STORY OF LOVE BARED AT TRIAL

Chauffeur Got Money and Jewels From Wealthy Ft. Worth Woman.

HUSBAND TELLS ALL TO COURT

Fort Worth, Tex., Dec. 16.—The story of the infatuation of the wife of a wealthy Fort Worth jeweler for her father's chauffeur, five years her junior, has come out in the courts. Horace M. Collins, Jr., formerly chauffeur, and more recently a practicing attorney here, was convicted of participation in an assault on J. H. Greer, the man whose home he is charged with trying to break up, and was sentenced to thirty-five years' imprisonment in the state penitentiary. Details of Collins' relations with Mrs. Greer were brought out by the defense in the case, in connection with the claim that the prosecution of this charge against him was the result of a conspiracy on the part of Greer and Mrs. Greer's father and brother to send Collins to the penitentiary in order to get him out of the way, because of the part which he had played in the domestic relations of the Greer family.

Forced to Tell Story.
Greer was first forced to tell the greater part of the story when he went on the witness stand to tell of his assault and robbery by three men, one of whom he declared he could identify positively as Collins.

Collins declared in his testimony that all of the advances came from Mrs. Greer and apparently he never has felt any interest in her except to get all of the money and jewels he could from her. She admitted in her testimony that she had loaned him at least $1,000, none of which had been repaid, and had given him numerous diamonds and other valuable jewelry. Collins was discharged from Long's employ when the condition of affairs was discovered by the family, but continued to meet Mrs. Greer clandestinely, sometimes at her own home, sometimes at the home of the Long place, or at other places near her home. On one of these occasions, he encountered Greer, who was waiting for him with a shotgun in the alley back of his home, but finally yielded to Collins' arguments for his life and let him go.

Finally Mrs. Greer brought suit for divorce. She testified she was urged to that step by Collins. He denied it, but the fact remained that the suit was brought by the attorney in whose office Collins was at the time studying law, all of his living expenses being paid by Mrs. Greer while he pursued his legal studies. The suit was later dismissed by Mrs. Greer, over the strenuous protest of the lawyer who had filed it.

Bank Account Cut Off.
Shortly after that Long and Greer cut off Mrs. Greer's bank account, although she had considerable property of her own, and stopped payment on checks which she had given to Collins. This fact, according to the theory of the state, formed the basis for the attack on Greer, giving Collins the double motive of revenge on Greer for the cutting off of his income and the desire to get him out of the way, with the idea that then he might possibly win over the Longs.

The assault and robbery occurred on the front porch of Greer's home. Greer was beaten with iron bars and then robbed.

Mrs. Greer now has been entirely reconciled to her husband and expresses her regret for the entire affair with Collins. Her husband takes the view that she was mentally irresponsible at the time.

MAJOR DEITIES CREATED PEOPLE

New Book Issued Containing Information From Nippur Tablets Giving Oldest Accounts of Creation.

Philadelphia, Dec. 16.—A year ago it was announced that Dr. Arne Pöbel had found tablets from Nippur which gave the oldest known accounts of the creation and the flood. He gave few details. It was said then, because he wished to deal with the subject confidentially in a book.

The book appeared today. It contains the earliest account of the creation and flood, and other historical documents in which Dr. Pöbel has found new lists of kings of Babylon which clear up missing dynasties and add more than a thousand years to recorded history.

Dr. Pöbel's tablet is estimated to have been written in the reign of Hammurabi about 2250 B. C., or about the time of Abraham.

According to its text, men were created by four of the major deities in order that they should worship the deities. Apparently men had not been given sufficient obedience to the gods, for they became angry and determined to destroy them by a flood.

Ten kings had now reigned for a period of 400,000 years, and the tenth king was Ziusiurra, a pious man, just as Noah, the tenth patriarch, was a pious man.

A definite time is given from the flood to a period that is historical and the date of which is fairly accurately estimated. Computations make this present year the 36,539th since the flood and the 468,539th since the creation.

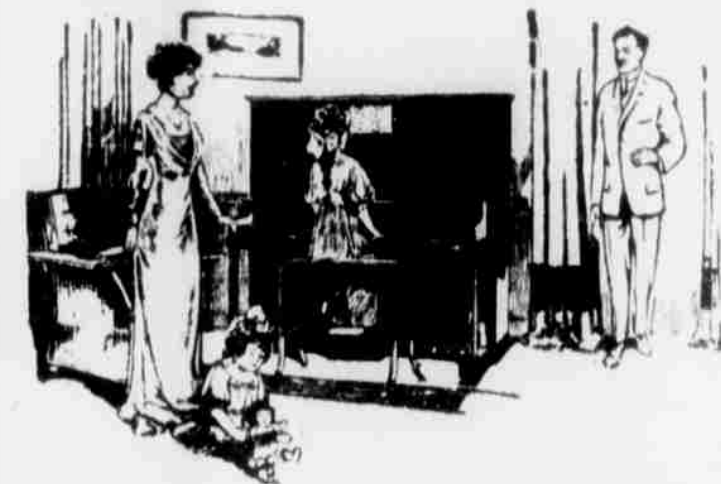

Heated by the Ranges.
"You will observe," said Professor Blank, "the higher the altitude the colder the temperature becomes."

"But isn't it warmer near the top of the mountains than it is in the valleys?" asked a boy at the foot of the class.

"Oh, certainly not," replied Professor Blank, "Why should you think it would be?"

"Oh," answered the youngster, "I thought perhaps the atmosphere was heated by the mountain ranges."

Doctor Brings Dead Woman to Life By Fingering Heart

Los Angeles, Dec. 16.—At Good Samaritan hospital yesterday, Mrs. Walter W. Akers, wife of the California manager for the International Fruit Products company, was restored to life after having been dead for ten minutes.

The raising was not from a threatened death, or state of coma as it is ordinarily understood," said Dr. P. M. Williams, who, with Dr. C. S. Hutchison, were the principals in the restoration.

"Mrs. Akers was actually dead. Her heart had stopped its functions; there was no pulse; the eyes were fixed in the glare which spells to every medical man the eternal sleep; there was no response to the usual tests. The patient was dead."

The end came during the progress of a major operation for laparotomy. Our attention was directed by Dr. W. S. Holman, who was administering the anesthetic, to the woman's complete collapse—in her death, he felt. Mr. Akers, who was awaiting the result of the operation in an adjoining room, was summoned and realized instantly what had happened. Respiration had no effect.

Then Dr. Hutchison inserted his hand through the abdominal incision made during the course of the operation; slowly, carefully until the diaphragm was reached. One finger grasped the top of the heart, his thumb was at the bottom. A slight compression, another and another followed until the physician's hand was contracting and dilating the organ of life in stimulation of the heart through which send the blood pulsing through the body of a living human.

The arteries responded after a time and then the faintest respiration appeared as the lungs reluctantly again took up their burden. After that the patient rallied with a marvelous facility and in a few minutes was so far recovered that it was necessary to administer a new anesthetic in order that the original

Franklin Matthews represented a newspaper during the Russo-Japanese war, and one day succeeded in breaking through the news censorship and reaching Field Marshal Oyama. The interview was brief but extremely courteous, and the jubilant correspondent hurried back to prepare the story for his paper. In the course of it he used the expression "Marshal Oyama is a brick."

The letter was duly passed along to the official translator, and presently Captain Kanaka of the marshal's personal staff, called upon the correspondent.

"Marshal Oyama presents his compliments," said the captain suavely, "and regrets to inform the esteemed correspondent that his honorable letter cannot be forwarded as written. 'Why, what's wrong with it?' cried the amazed war scribbler.

"Marshal Oyama," he said, "objects to having the great American public regard him as baked mud."

For that is what the extremely literal translator had made of "brick."
